Do you ever throw pennies in the garbage?

STOP!

Throw them at The Money Collection instead!

The Money Collection is now accepting donations of money. There is no catch. This isn't a scam. It's just a request for money. I can guess that you have a problem with this request. Why should you give me money? I will tell you why.

I am collecting money for two reasons. First of all, I am a collector. Over the years I have been collecting all kinds of things and ideas from around me. For example, I have a collection of rocks, a collection of songs made from a Zoom Rhythm Trak RT-123, a collection of answering machine messages from 1999, etc.

Secondly, I need money. I wish that I could spend my time collecting all kinds of things and ideas, but instead I am busy trying to pay for my next bowl of oats or my last month's rent. Out of necessity, I've decided to turn my interest in collecting into a more practical endeavor.

I've already started to look for money on the street. I have asked friends and family to help with the collection. I'm looking under the pillows of sofas, in washing machines, in unlabeled donation boxes, in coat pockets, etc. I have even looked under rocks.

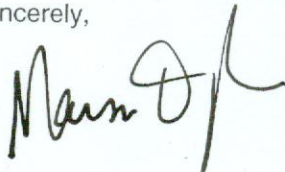

I'm also looking for a job. I'm entering contests. I sent a message into outer space asking the Universe for assistance (www.TeamEncounter.com). I've got a plastic bag full of pennies and nickels. I've set up a money depot in my room. I found a wallet. I take pictures of money. I photocopy money. I tried to eat money. This collection needs your help.

In attempt to extend my search worldwide, I'm now sending out a general call for money. I have nothing to lose. It may be strange for you to give money to someone you don't know. But, you wouldn't have to give a lot of money. Loose change, foreign money, old checks, credit cards, small bills are being accepted. You can send money that you don't spend, such as silver dollars, rare coins or coins with sentimental value. Even valuable items are ok. Actually, anything with monetary value will do.

If you have any questions or for more information please contact:

I look forward to receiving your donation.

Sincerely,

Maura Doyle

For example, I have a collection of rocks, a collection of songs made from a Zoom Rhythm Trak 123, a fanny pack collection, a collection of no smoking buttons, a collection of answering machine messages from 1999, etc.

Secondly, I need money. I wish that I could spend my time collecting all kinds of things and ideas, but instead I am busy trying to pay for my next bowl of oats or my last month's rent. Out of necessity, I've decided to turn my interest in collecting into a more practical endeavor.

I have already started to look for money on the street. I donate my own loose change to the collection. I have bothered friends and family to help with the collection. I'm looking under the pillows of sofas, in washing machines, in unlabeled donation boxes, in coat pockets, etc. I have even looked under rocks.
